Research Report ,1992     Case Studies in Participatory Irrigation Management David Groenfeldt,Mark Svendsen,2000 Water is a vital element for agricultural production and for economic development in general However the spatial and temporal distribution of water in Mexico restrains its use Because of this distribution it has been necessary to build a large infrastructure to capture store and allot this element among water users Around the world countries that once promoted more government involvement in irrigation management are adopting new policies that do just the opposite creating incentives for farmers to take over the management of operations and maintenance while government agencies focus on improving the management of water at the main system level Is this just another management fad or will the pendulum that is now swinging toward greater management control by farmers soon swing back the other way toward greater state control This volume reports on four countries where the state s role in irrigation management has undergone fundamental change and where the result has been a much greater management role for farmers These studies address the political antecedents of participatory irrigation management PIM policies the process of implementing the policies and the second generation challenges of sustaining PIM These experiences will prove useful to policymakers and irrigation professionals who are facing similar challenges in their own countries     Program Evaluation Kentucky. the more traditional HCI research and education focus found in previous INTERACT conferences one strand of the 1997 conference has been devoted to industry and another to multimedia The growth in the IFIP TC13 committee itself reflects the expansion of HCI into new worlds Membership of IFIP TC13 has risen to now include representatives of 24 IFIP member country societies from many parts of the world In 1997 IFIP TC13 breaks new ground by holding its sixth INTERACT conference in the Asia Pacific region This is a significant departure from previous INTERACT conferences that were all held in Europe and is especially important for the Asia Pacific region as HCI expands beyond its traditional base Catalog of Copyright Entries, Fourth Series Library of Congress.
