Disability Psychotherapy Patricia Frankish, 2018-05-08 Much has been written about cognitive development in those who are cognitively impaired Much is written about attachment for people who don't have disabilities Yet people with disabilities have suffered discrimination and neglect of their emotional needs perhaps because the pain of difference cannot be tolerated perhaps because of lack of will or lack of knowledge This book aims to help to fill the knowledge gap and to encourage others to overcome their resistance to facing the pain and will be an important contribution to our understanding of the world of disability and emotional deprivation In this book a result of over twenty years experience with people who have disabilities and additional distress as a result of traumatic life experiences an attempt is made to bring together what we know about early emotional development and the consequences of failure to provide an emotionally nurturing experience and the results are then applied to people with disabilities Trauma and Intellectual Disability: Acknowledgement,

Trauma-Informed Care in Intellectual Disability Pat Frankish, 2020-01-30 Recent studies have identified that there is a high incidence and prevalence of trauma amongst people with intellectual disabilities which often results in arrested emotional development Some of this relates to experiences of being restrained or separated from people they know and some to early traumatic events such as abandonment or neglect Historically most of the consequential emotional difficulties have been labelled as an effect of the disability or more recently as challenging behaviour For years psychotherapy has been denied to people with intellectual disabilities who have experienced trauma on the grounds that they could not benefit from it While this has proved not to be the case and attempts are being made to redress the balance individual psychotherapy will always be in short supply Trauma informed care in Intellectual Disability will enable support staff to work therapeutically Written by Dr Pat Frankish a clinical psychologist with many years of experience in the field of intellectual disability and psychotherapy whose work is dedicated to the development and growth of Trauma Informed Care as a model of working with people with disabilities Intellectual Disability, Trauma and Psychotherapy Tamsin Cottis, 2008-11-03 This book focuses on
