Bryderup,2008-12-01 Policymakers in welfare democracies throughout the world are raising questions as to whether welfare systems deliver what the public expects and focus attention on increasing costs Social workers need more evidence and knowledge about an increasing diversity of social work practices Users of social welfare are increasingly individualized and made responsible for choosing and delivering their own service through contracts and this makes politicians social workers and users more interested in evidence and knowledge about social services even though these interests are often conflicting These tendencies might be part of the reasons why the evaluation of social work practice seems to be characterized at present by a variety and diversity of research methods approaches and theories

The Sumerian Sacred Marriage in the Light of Comparative Evidence Pirjo Lapinkivi, 2004 The primary purpose of this study is to increase understanding of Sumerian sacred marriage by approaching it from a comparative perspective More generally it is hoped that the study will illustrate the fruitfulness of the comparative approach for the study of Sumerian religion and royal ideology and that it will prove useful to the other fields of study whose sources were used as the comparative evidence The comparative evidence includes sources from six different fields of study Assyriology first and second millennium love lyrics and rituals Biblical studies The Song of Songs Classics Graeco Roman philosophies Chaldean Oracles Gnostic studies Jewish mysticism Kabbalah and Indology Hindu rites and myths Ancient Egyptian and Ugaritic evidence is also used Part One of the study presents and analyzes the primary evidence for the Sumerian sacred marriage starting with the Sumerian love song corpus also known as the Dumuzi Inanna DI love songs In addition to the love song corpus the evidence discussed in Part One includes second millennium literary texts and royal inscriptions referring to a marital relationship between the ruling king and Inanna Istar Part Two analyzes and discusses the constituent elements of the Sumerian sacred marriage the actors of the marriage and the timing and scene of the related ritual At this point some comparison with the parallel material is inevitable Part Three presents the comparative evidence and a detailed analysis of the thematic elements shared by the different traditions This section also includes a discussion of the concept of the soul in Mesopotamia and in other parts of the ancient world Concepts of the Netherworld and afterlife in Mesopotamia are also examined

The Evidence of Language William Foxwell Albright, Thomas Oden Lambdin, 1966 While it is difficult to establish a close relationship between language form and the racial or cultural characteristics of its speakers an intimate relationship does exist between culture and language content The study of language content needs no special justification since the written records of antiquity are our most valuable source of information concerning the peoples and civilizations which form the object of historical investigation But language as a formal structure like the tools and institutions of a society represents a kind of transmitted organism and as such falls into the category of data which can be ordered in typologically related sequences Thus for the historian who is interested primarily in tracing interacting continuities the study of the history and development of a language apart from its use as a vehicle for oral and written traditions provides useful and sometimes unique evidence of otherwise undiscernible ethnic and cultural affiliations
