beyond its shores In the final analysis the book explores the Atlantic as a zone of created relation characterised by the interaction between processes of translation mobility and in the best of cases of hospitality and most importantly as a space no longer defined by economic and military power but by the multiplicity of identities forged in its ambit This book will be of interest to scholars and advanced students of translation studies literature history human geography politics sociology and cultural studies It was originally published as a special issue of the journal Atlantic Studies Kaplan SAT II Biology systems their social roots and their cultural and political impact He begins by providing standards for judging beliefs implausible and assessing the impact of such belief systems on politics and social policy in the US Mazur describes and defends commonsense criteria for establishing that certain views should not be sustained in the face of present day understanding He presents a statistical portrait of implausible beliefs rampant in the US and who tends to accept them Mazur applies criteria for implausibility to the Bible astrology and visitation to Earth of intelligent beings from other worlds Pointing out that everyone knows the Bible but few actually read it the author scrolls through the first five books of the text noting points that undermine the scripture's natural history and moral guidance Working on the assumption that implausible religious views are fundamentally no different from implausible secular views he critiques secular beliefs in astrology and UFOs Mazur concludes the volume with an attempt to explain why most people accept implausibility some more than others despite evidence and logic that refute them Looking to mainstream sociology and psychology Mazur shows how children are socialized into such beliefs and how adults are influenced by spouses and friends Personality is also a factor sometimes abetted by stressful or lonely life situations Lucidly written this is a provocative and informative contribution to social psychology sociology religion political science and American studies
